days to the equator. Had little or no N. E. trades in the Atlantic. Was 28 days from the equator to 50 deg. S., and 31 days from 50 deg. in the Atlantic to 50 deg. in the Pacific, with no hard gales, and 36 days from 50 deg. to the equator in the Pacific, and winds. Dec. 4th, signalled Engwas buried the next day in latitude 5 deg. S., longitude 116 W., Pacific Ocean.

T. M. BENSON, Master.

HONOLULU FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Pursuant to an order the members of the various fire companies assembled at the Bell Tower last night at 7 o'clock for taking action on the proposed amendment to Art. 21 of the Department Constitution.

The proposed amendment was to substitute the words "Board of Representatives" for "Active members of the Fire Department." The Article would then read, "No alterations or amendments shall be made in this constitution, unless by a concurrence of two-thirds of the Board of Representatives of the Honolulu Fire Department."

There were 163 votes cast; 148 for the Article as it now stands, 14 for the amendment, and 1 scattering.
The votes of the different companies were as follows: No. 1, 6; No. 2, 15; No. 4, 44; No. 5, 44; Pacific Hose, 18; Hook and Ladder, 36.

DEATH OF L. AHOLO.

Mr. Luther Aholo died this morning, at 8 o'clock, at the Palama residence of Princess Liliuokalani.
Heart disease was the cause of death.

The deceased came here from Lahaina, Maui, some months ago, for medical treatment, and has been stopping at the Princess's residence.
He had been in poor health for the last year or two.

The late Mr. Aholo was a native Hawaiian, and a man of more than average brains and ability. He was at one time, many years ago, a teacher in the Lahainaluna school.
After leaving that institution he occupied the position of Governor's clerk for the island of Maui, and later did duty as tax assessor or collector on the same island. He also practised as a lawyer. For many years he was a representative for the district of Lahaina in the Legislature and was Vice-President of the Assembly for several terms.
In the Ministry immediately preceding the present, Mr. Aholo held the portfolio of the Interior.

As before intimated, he was a Hawaiian of rare mental capacity and acquirements, and his decease creates a blank that will be hard to fill. He was of a non-communica-tive disposition, but was always dignified and gentlemanly.

The Pope on Saturday received 300 American pilgrims.

SUPREME COURT.

BEFORE HICKERTON, J.
In re estate of Sarah Ann Morris, late of Honolulu, Oahu, deceased.
Petition of C. R. Bishop for Probate of Will, etc. Ordered that letters testamentary be issued to petitioner, to act under $4,500 bond: the usual notice to creditors, etc., etc.
J. A. Magoon for petitioner.

THE DEBATING CLUB.

At the meeting of the Debating Club last night, Mr. Alex. Robertson read an essay on "Reciprocity and Pearl Harbor." Several members took part in the discussion which followed, after which Mr.
Robertson ingeniously replied to the points raised by his critics. The meeting terminated with a reading by Mr. H. Adams and a recitation by Mr. J. F. Smith. "Is the credit system an evil in Honolulu?" was announced as the subject of debate for the next meeting.

Y. M. C. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held last night, President F. J. Lowery, presiding.
The reports of the various committees were read and accepted.
The Hon. A. F. Judd reported that the Hawaiian branch was in a very flourishing condition and great interest was shown by the members, especially in committee work.

The Treasurer's report showed an excess of expenditures over receipts of $5.75, which amount was made good by a collection. The report also stated that the sum of $450, would be required before the end of the fiscal year to meet all demands.
The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

Messrs. W. A. Bowen, A. F.
Cooke and S. D. Fuller were appointed a committee to nominate officers for the next ensuing year and to report at the annual meeting to be held on the third Thursday of April next.

A VAST UNDEVELOPED TERRITORY—

NORTHERN AUSTRALIA.

A lecture on this subject was delivered last night at Exeter Hall by Hugh Watt, M. P. Lord Brassey, K. C. B. presided, and in introducing the lecturer observed he had recently returned from a voyage, in the course of which he had circumnavigated the coasts of Australia.
He would not say that the northern territory of South Australia was a region very fit for colonization by large numbers of our population, but this was clear, that if we could develop the resources of those countries, whether by the labor of men of our own race or by the labor of tropical races, we should produce beneficial results for ourselves. If we made those countries prosperous and populous, we increased the consumption of our manufactures and promoted trade and commerce.
Mr. Watt then delivered his lecture, which he said, related to a vast continent, forming a portion of one of the most important possessions of the greatest empire that human genius had ever created. The northern territory contained an area of 531,402 square miles or 340,997, 280 acres, of which up to October last more than half—267,845 square miles—had been taken up by pastoral lessees. It might interest the farming classes in this country if he stated that the total rent payable for that enormous tract of country only slightly exceeded £20,000.
He afterward spoke of the rich mineral and agricultural resources of the northern territory and of the advantages it offered to immigrants.

"I can never be more than a sister to you," said a buxom widow, tenderly, to an old bachelor, who had proposed. "Ah, madam, yes you can," he responded, gallantly.
"I am not a man to lose hope."
"Yes, but I say I cannot," she persisted. "You have daughters, madam," he said, "and you may yet be my mother-in-law."—[Washington Critic.

BYRON'S DESCENDANTS.

The poet's first child was Ada, whom he never saw after her second month, for his wife then abandoned him. Allegra (illegitimate) was thirteen months younger than Ada, and was the only object Byron really loved. She died, however, in her childhood, and was sent from Italy to England for burial. Ada Byron became an elegant woman, but never displayed intellectual power. In her twentieth year she married an English gentleman named King, who by courtesy was called the Earl of Lovelace. She died in 1852, being in her thirty-seventh year, just the age of her father when he died. She had two sons, and the elder was so eccentric that his death was a relief. He turned amateur highwayman and stopped a carriage with a pistol, to which was added other mischief which soon wore out the patience of his friends. Then he renounced the name and got employment in a shipyard, and was on the point of marrying the daughter of a carpenter when his death suddenly took place.
The next son inherited wealth and a title, but he lacked force of character. He married the daughter of a clergyman, but the union, which was very unhappy, was soon dissolved by the death of the wife.
One daughter was born to this discordant couple, and she is now the sole representative of the line, which no doubt will become extinct, and if so it is just what the miserable poet desired. Well, the centennial will take place on Sunday. Though I do not suggest it as a Sunday theme, it certainly affords lessons which might be improved on any occasion. The worst spectacle in the world is a wasted life, and such was the picture Byron thus presents of himself:

—In short, I Have squandered my whole summer twas May.
Have spent my life both interest and principal.
And deem not what I deemed—my soul inviolable.

The best thing to read in connection with this confession is James Russell Lowell's "Extreme Unction," the original of which Byron might have supplied better than any other character. —[N. Y. Corr. Troy Times, Jan. 25.

"I wonder what's the matter with the old black hen?" said Mrs. Bascom. "I haven't found any eggs in her nest for four or five days."
"Guess she's laying off," said Mr.
Bascom. —[Detroit Free Press.
